The Orange County Center of Excellence for Labor Market Research (COE) prepared this report to provide Los Angeles/Orange County regional labor market supply and demand data for six occupations related to marketing. This report details occupations relevant to general marketing programs, which typically inform students about marketing functions and tasks that facilitate the flow of goods and services to consumers and provides students with practical and applicable marketing skills. Marketing occupations typically require workers to obtain a bachelor's degree or higher. To illuminate which occupations are immediately accessible to community college graduates, the marketing occupations have been divided into middle-skill and above middle-skill occupations. Middle-skill occupations typically accommodate community college graduates, while above middle-skill occupations typically require a four-year degree and/or prior work experience.

The occupations included in the middle-skill marketing occupation group are: Buyers and Purchasing Agents (13-1028) and Sales Representatives, Wholesale and Manufacturing, Except Technical and Scientific Products (41-4012). The occupations in the above middle-skill marketing group are: Advertising and Promotions Managers (11-2021), Marketing Managers (11-2021), Sales Managers (11-2022), and Market Research Analysts and Marketing Specialists (13-1161).

Since each of these occupations contain a variety of job titles that range from entry-level to executive, this report also includes data for online job postings for five common marketing job titles along a typical marketing career path: Marketing Assistant, Marketing Coordinator, Marketing Specialist, Marketing Manager, and Marketing Director.

Based on the available data, there appears to be a supply gap for middle-skill marketing occupations in the region. Though the majority of job openings for these middle-skill marketing occupations in the LA/OC region typically require a high school diploma or equivalent, the educational attainment data indicates between $31.3 \%$ and $34.3 \%$ of workers in the middle-skill marketing occupations have completed some college or an associate degree as their highest level of education. Furthermore, all the annual openings for these middle-skill marketing occupations have entry-level wages above the living wage in Orange County. Therefore, due to all the criteria being met, the COE endorses this proposed program. Reasons include:

Demand:

- Over the next five years, there is projected to be $\mathbf{7 , 6 1 5}$ middle-skill marketing jobs available annually in the LA/OC region due to retirements and workers leaving the field, which is more than the 1,017 awards conferred annually by educational institutions in the region.
- Within Orange County, the majority (77\%) of annual job openings for these middle-skill marketing occupations have entry-level wages below the county's living wage ($20.63). ${ }^{1}$
- Within the LA/OC region, $78 \%$ of annual openings for the middle-skill marketing occupations in this report typically a high school diploma or equivalent.
- However, the national-level educational attainment data indicates between $31.3 \%$ and $34.3 \%$ of workers in the middle-skill occupations have completed some college or an associate degree as their highest level of education.

Supply:

- There are $\mathbf{2 3}$ community colleges in the region that issue awards related to marketing and distribution, conferring an average of 264 awards annually between 2017 and 2020.
- Between 2016 and 2019, there was an average of 753 awards conferred annually in related training programs by 10 non-community college institutions throughout the region.

Occupational Demand

Exhibit 1 shows the five-year occupational demand projections for the middle-skill group of marketing occupations. In Los Angeles/Orange County, the number of jobs related to these occupations is projected to decrease by $8 \%$ through 2025 . However, there will be more than 7,600 job openings per year through 2025 due to retirements and workers leaving the field.

This report includes employment projection data by Emsi which uses EDD information. Emsi's projections are modeled on recorded (historical) employment figures and incorporate several underlying assumptions, including the assumption that the economy, during the projection period, will be at approximately full employment. To the extent that a recession or labor shock, such as the economic effects of COVID-19, can cause long-term structural change, it may impact the projections. At this time, it is not possible to quantify the impact of COVID-19 on projections of industry and occupational employment. Therefore, the projections included in this report do not take the impacts of COVID-19 into account.

Wages

The labor market endorsement in this report considers the entry-level hourly wages for the middle-skill group of occupations in Orange County as they relate to the county's living wage. ## Employer Job Postings

Exhibit 3 shows a typical career path for marketing workers. While there are exceptions to this career progression and different entry points for workers based on education and experience, these titles are commonly used by employers in online job postings. Marketing Assistant is the typical entry-level title and workers following this career trajectory could work their way up to Marketing Director.

Educational Attainment-The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) lists the following typical entrylevel education for these marketing occupations:

- Bachelor's degree: Advertising and Promotions Managers; Marketing Managers; Sales Managers; Buyers and Purchasing Agents; and Market Research Analysts and Marketing Specialists
- High school diploma or equivalent: Sales Representatives, Wholesale and Manufacturing, except Technical and Scientific Products

In the LA/OC region, the majority of annual job openings (78\%) for middle-skill marketing occupations typically require a high school diploma or equivalent. Furthermore, the national-level educational attainment data indicates between $31.3 \%$ and $34.3 \%$ of workers in the middle-skill marketing occupations have completed some college or an associate degree as their highest level of education.

Educational Supply

Community College Supply-Exhibit 9, on the following page, shows the three-year average number of awards conferred by community colleges in the related TOP code: Marketing and Distribution (0509.00). Cumulatively, the 24 community colleges in the region with marketing programs and certificates have conferred an average of 264 awards annually over the past three years. The colleges with the most completions in the region were Orange Coast, LA Valley, and Santiago Canyon. Over the past 12 months, there were two other related program recommendation request from a regional community college.

Non-Community College Supply-Since some of these occupations typically require a bachelor's degree, it is important to consider the supply from four-year and other institutions in the region that provide training programs for these marketing occupations. Exhibit 10 shows the annual and three-year average number of awards conferred by these institutions in the related Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) Code: Marketing and Distribution (52.1401). Due to different data collection periods, the most recent three-year period of available data is from 2016 to 2019. Between 2016 and 2019, other educational institutions in the region conferred an average of 753 awards annually in related training programs.
